

APPLICATION REVIEW

Description

TheFatEnvelope uses a system that mirrors the selection process of admission officers to evaluate the college applications of our clients. Our staff are motivated to make your application stand out among the crowd. We believe that the college application should be less a laundry list of facts and more a portrait of you. Our readers provide detailed feedback and suggestions for all portions of your application before offering our opinion of your standing as an applicant.

The Submission

You should submit the PDF of your full application (e.g. Common Application PDF Preview and unofficial High School Transcript) and a list of the schools to which you are applying. We also recommend that you include a few sentences explaining the size of your hometown and high school and other pertinent information to give our staff additional context. If you have supplemental essays for a specific college or university, feel free to include those as well. We review each piece of your submission as college admission committees do, analyzing the strength of your academic resume and how well your extracurriculars and essays represent your interests of your application. If you have prepared a resume, we recommend that you include it in your submission as well.

The Review

After receiving your submission we analyze each individual component of the application to develop an overall impression of your application. We take note of your unique qualities, identify your biggest strengths and weaknesses, and identify points where your application needs work.

After a rigorous review process, you will receive:

- An annotated PDF of your application marked with grammatical and logical corrections, your application's strengths and weaknesses, and other questions and comments.
- A letter from your personal advisor detailing how you can best improve your application
